8th graders working on STEM. Science, Technology, Engineering & Math.

STEM: Science, Technology, Engineering and Math

If you ask fifth through eighth graders what their favorite class is, many will respond: "STEM!" STEM promotes problem-based learning in which students are presented with real-life problems. They then work collaboratively to research the issue and find a solution using science, technology, engineering and math skills. From rabbit overpopulation to learning about hydraulic pumps, the students are loving their time with Mr. Schneller in STEM lab!
